Greetings!

A mom came to my office concerned and upset about how to communicate to her daughter about drugs, with so many conflicting messages out there, after discovering her daughter was using.

Educating and equipping parents is as much a part of our mission at MHS as educating our students. We have an incredible opportunity to share with you. Two years ago at the Annual Drug Summit, Dr. Waller spoke to our students in a separate break out session about what you need to consider when choosing to use drugs of any kind. Because of the audience, he specifically addressed marijuana. As I listened and also observed every student riveted on him, I thought he was the best I had ever heard. He did not criticize the medical use nor did he glorify the misuse, he simply explained what actually happens to your body and brain from the use of any type of drug. When I met with our students afterwards, and the group was made up of students from all back-grounds in regards to substance use and misuse, they unanimously wanted to bring him to MHS for other students. When we inquired about that, he was not available. Now, two years later, the Monroe County Drug Coalition has scheduled an evening for all students and parents to hear Dr. Waller.

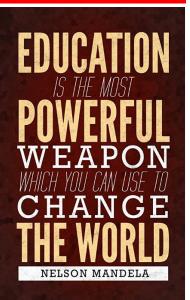

Please consider this tremendous opportunity. As a principal, former school counselor and health educator, I know these opportunities do not come up often. The title of the program sounds scientific but his presentation is down to earth and straight forward.

In a day with so many messages are being thrown at our youth, if we can come from a position of knowledge and understanding, we will be better able to empathize and guide.

I wish everyone a wonderful holiday season.

Sincerely,

Sandy Kreps
